ARIZONA WOMAN SANE; TO HANG FRIDAY

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

A French woman recently celebrated her 100th birthday and boaster at the time that she had never slept outside of the house in which she was born. May be worth while boasting for some people, but—

That's the trouble with a great many people. They have never been outside of their own community and can't understand why people who come from another section of the world are dissatisfied with certain conditions.

Just because we have been doing a thing for a great many years is by no means a sign that it is the best thing—or that it is the best way to do things.

We are inclined to inherit a great many things like we do our religion and politics. The other fellow is always wrong if by any chance our father and his father and so on did things in a certain way and the intruder insists that his way is the better.

It is surprising to note with this day of modern education, communication and transportation that some provincialisms stick worse than tar and that there are some old diehards who wouldn't welcome a change even if it is proven to them that it will be to their benefit.

The human mind is a great deal like a pound of butter. If you put a pound of butter near some garlic, fish or other strong smelling article it won't be long before the butter starts to smell the same way.

The trouble with some of us is that we won't work hard enough to do a little thinking of our own and get out of the scent of the other fellows thought.

If a community happens to have one or two outstanding successful men the chances are that they have a following which follows around them like flies on a piece of sugar.

The fact that their models may be all wrong makes no difference to them. If he did so and so, it must be right, because isn't he one of the most successful men in our community?

The trouble is that some financial success is controlled in some respects by a little piece of luck.

Then these men who hold the sack, so to speak, are permitted to run things to their own liking whether they know what it is all about or not. The results are sometimes funny, but more often pathetic.

A city which is controlled in this manner is to be censured more than pitied for it is the fault of the population at large that such conditions exist.

FRENCH HALT NAVAL CUT PARLEY

LONDON, Feb. 19.—UP.—The five-power naval conference adjourned for a week today after Italy had restated its position for parity with France and Senator Joseph T. Robinson had virtually served notice the United States would not agree to the French demand for a specific security pact.

An official communiqué said the adjournment was out of courtesy to the French, whose delegations here have been crippled by the cabinet crisis in Paris. The experts' sub committee, now considering special classes of vessels, will continue functioning, however, and the heads of delegations probably will meet in private conversations.

Despite the gesture of consideration for the French, the day's developments also were directed against the position earlier expressed by the Paris delegation.

Small Navy Asked
Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, setting forth Italy's viewpoint in a memorandum to the press, noncommittally reiterated the claim for as small a navy as possible, provided it were not exceeded by that of "any other continental power," namely France.

Grandi said Italy was willing to consider total abolition of capital ships if the other powers were, and was ready to join a capital ship holiday on the basis of its present battlefleet strength. Italy, he said, favors limiting the tonnage of submarines.

Grandi declared in effect that his country was willing to limit its airplane carrier tonnage to the French level. Even if this meant not using the full Italian allotment of 60,000 tons granted under the Washington treaty.

As a signatory of the Locarno treaty, Italy had a special commitment. (Continued on Page 5)

SIX BUILDING PERMITS HERE

Yesterday was the record day for 1930 in building activities as far as the number of permits was concerned. Six permits for various building activities were issued in the office of A. J. Hurley, city building inspector.

The largest permit of the day was issued to the American Creamery company for the erection of a $5000 addition to its store at 718 Macdonald avenue. Wallace Snelgrove will do the work.

Paul B. Fay obtained permission to remodel a brick building on Richmond avenue between Santa Fe and Washington avenues. The cost of the work is to be $320 and will be done by J. C. Rogers. The structure after the completion of repair work is to be used as a garage.

J. J. Burdon and Son, were granted a permit to alter a store front at 1428 Macdonald avenue at a cost of $150.

J. L. McElfish is to install a cellar under a home on Barrett avenue, between Thirty-first and Thirty-second street at a cost of $200. G. J. Gordon is to do the work.

G. A. Adams will erect a two-car garage and storage shed on Virginia avenue, between Fifth and Sixth streets. The work is to cost $350 and will be done by Dryden and Son. Adams was also given a permit to move a cottage on the same lot. H. G. Johnson will do the moving.

KIWANIS TO HEAR ABOUT S. A. DISPUTE

Members of the Richmond Kiwanis club and their guests will have an opportunity to hear first hand information on South American boundary disputes at the weekly luncheon of the club next Wednesday at the Hotel Carquinez.

Ralph Bergen, chairman of the session has obtained Maj. W. F. Winton, U. S. Army, D. O. L., former military attaché to Peru as the speaker of the day.

Major Winton, at present senior instructor for the 143rd Field Artillery, California National Guard, in Oakland is a recognized expert on South American affairs.

Following his return to the United States from his tour of duty in Peru, Major Winton was made a Knight Commander of the Order of the Sons of Peru, with permission of the United States government.

Although Major Winton was sent to Peru as military attaché he was also accredited to Bolivia.

The boundary dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay, on which Major Winton will speak is a live issue between the southern republics. Several armed conflicts have taken place in recent years in an attempt to settle the row. Major Winton made a close study of the military situation regarding the two nations while on his tour of official duty. The United States is keenly interested in the military advancement of the South American countries, Major Winton stated in discussing his topic before the local club.

The speaker served as a major of the U. S. Army during the World War, and saw active service in France.

FLEAGLE PLEA TO BE FOUGHT

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 19.—UP.—Attorney General Robert E. Winbourn said today he planned to make every possible effort to have the death sentence of Ralph Fleagle, gray-haired leader of the Lamar, Colo. bank bandits gang, upheld.

Fleagle said he confessed to the robbery of the First National bank of Lamar, in which three bank officials and a physician were killed, and implicated his confederates, Howard Royston and George Abshier, on a promise from the state that he would be given a life sentence.

Winbourn denied he made such a promise to Fleagle, and said his office would vigorously oppose his appeal, which is expected within the next few days.

The three men were found guilty by a jury and sentenced to death. Royston and Abshier have filed appeals with the state Supreme court.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—UP.—Refreshing showers, which followed a record-breaking heat wave for the month of February, fell in the San Francisco bay region today.

Although the United States Weather Bureau recorded only .02 of an inch of rain before dark, this was sufficient to break a dry spell that had lasted since Jan. 3.

Occasional rains were predicted for Thursday.

A maximum temperature of 60, about 15 degrees below figures that were registered last week, was recorded.

CONTRACTORS DEFY JURY IN PAVING QUIZ

NEW CHARGES AIRED AT HEARING

OAKLAND, Feb. 19.—Defiance of the Alameda county grand jury by three leading Oakland contractors; testimony that an Oakland bootlegger had paid police protection money; disappearance of official city records and their subsequent recovery; disclosure that members of the alleged "paving ring" received advance information on competitive bids; employment of Commissioner C. C. Young to measure disputed paving; the arrival of a mysterious witness in custody and his spiriting away to a conference with the district attorney, and the hint that a contractor, by his refusal to answer questions might be a "hit subject for San Quentin," were some of the startling developments in today's session of the grand jury investigation of the Oakland paving "scandal."

According to testimony offered the grand jury by Harry Smith, Mayor John L. Davies' campaign manager in the election of 1927, a bootlegger named Floyd said he had paid $100 to Charles Meyers, ball bond broker, to "square it with the police." Smith added in his testimony that Floyd declared that Harry Orbell, head of the police moral squad, called Floyd and Meyers into conference with the result that Meyers returned the "protection" money.

DOG SLED IN LIFE RACE

THE PAS, Man., Feb. 19.—UP.—The brawn of a pink-checked young man and his seven racing dogs was pitted against 100 miles of the wildest of snow-covered country tonight in a race to save the life of an aged Eskimo trapper.

Bad Stewart, youthful musher, urged his panting Huskies over the frozen prairie in a desperate dash to bring Esatook, well known Eskimo hunter, from Churchill to The Pas, 1100 miles away, before an infection proves fatal.

All resources of the far north were called in to aid young Stewart in his race against death. Mounted police, Hudson Bay, National railway officials and Indian agents laid plans to aid the rescue.

One of the railroad's heaviest engines, equipped with a snow plow, was sent thundering toward the winter terminus of the Hudson Bay line. It carried medical supplies and food.

The engine's crew hoped to spot the plodding dog sled in the barren expanse of snow, take the two men aboard, and arrive here in time to save Esatook's life. Should Stewart have chosen a route not (Continued on Page 8)

Oakland Hits Freight Rates

OAKLAND, Feb. 19.—Formal protest was filed with the interstate commerce commission today by the Oakland Chamber of Commerce against alleged discrimination in freight rates between the Oakland harbor and various points in the Richmond industrial area.

E. G. Wilcox, manager of the traffic department, drew up the complaint. It points out that while freight is carried between the Richmond docks and the Oakland areas at 2 1/4 cents a hundred pounds, Oakland consignors must pay 3 1/2 cents for similar service.

According to Wilcox, efforts were made to reconcile the dispute without the necessity of formal protest, but negotiations did not bring the relief demanded.

The Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe railroads are named as the carriers in the protest.

FIRST OF SEX EXECUTED IN WEST

FLORENCE, Ariz., Feb. 19.—UP.—With a surprising calm, Mrs. Eva Dugan late today heard the verdict of an all-male jury that she is sane and must die on the gallows Friday—the first woman to ever be hanged in Arizona.

Eleven voted that she was sane. A twelfth member of the panel disagreed, but only a majority vote was needed.

The 51-year old woman was found guilty of the murder of A. J. Mathis, aged Tuscon, Ariz., reclusive and since that time a fight to save her from death has been made. When the jury returned its verdict, Lorenzo Wright, prison superintendent, began preparations for the execution.

Motionless as though in a trance Mrs. Dugan sat on her cot, her hands limply lying in her lap.

Guards Watch
She simply nodded her head, when asked if she wished to make a statement. She declined spiritual comfort.

Her pale face stared at the cold hard iron bars that separated her from sunlight and life.

Outside, in the glum corridor, three armed guards were silently treading the concrete floor.

They were watching a woman to be hanged. It somewhat went against the grain of western chivalry. The thing had been done out east, but in the far west—it was the first time.

Dies Friday
Being a woman, it was learned, rior will somewhat subside to mercy, so far as regulations of the state prison will allow.

The verdict which will result in Mrs. Dugan's death at 5 a. m. Friday (Continued on Page 5)

THE WOMAN OF IT

He'll Sing For His Supper; Or, Feed the Brute!

BUSINESS girls certainly do have their troubles—And unemployment, the subway, the threat of long skirts, cranky employers, the tendency of silk stockings to develop runs By no means exhaust the list.

What do you think is the newest bit of bad news for the poor working girl? It's this: the only way in which she can be reasonably sure of enjoying the society of man is by COOKING for him. Just as the sweet old-fashioned home girl has had to do for generations!

Our authority for this humiliating disclosure is the Independent Woman, a magazine for business and professional women, and an excellent one. Published under the auspices of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Marie L. Darrach, writing in the current issue about capturing the elusive male.

Admits in so many words that about the only true and tested method—Even for the most successful business woman—Is to capture him with the bait of a good dinner.

Cooked by her own fair hands? "Sweet the brute" is still the sure-fire formula. And Little Tommy Tucker sings best when he sings for his supper! As a social accessory men have practically disappeared from the lives of business and professional women. Miss Darrach despairingly sets down: "It is the fate of the wall flower that has overtaken business women."

"Who find themselves minus a stag-lite?" But enough—why dwell longer on this tragedy? Here's the big idea: If the business girl wants a man's society, she must beat him an omelet, or broil a steak or chop—

Only this and nothing more! "I attribute my popularity as a business belle explained to Miss Darrach. 'Entirely to the fact that I am a good cook. Your life will be all high lights. And not only will you be there, but you will have the inestimable privilege of telling all the world about it. And when you sleep you will dream of all the scandals and stories and inside information that all good journalists know and can never tell.'"

"You will be worked to death, worried, excited, nauseated, thrilled, disgusted, exalted—But, by God, you will never be bored. And when you sleep you will dream of all the scandals and stories and inside information that all good journalists know and can never tell."

Also, of course, though she may not say so, because she likes a good time. And—oh, let's be honest—parties need men. There you are—it doesn't pay a woman even to advertise.

Unless she also can cook! Along with stenotyping and bookkeeping and salesmanship and all the other things a business girl must know. Let her not forget to learn how to roast chicken and make chocolate cake—

If she wants to avoid being a business wall flower! Oh, well, probably the advice is perfectly sound. But we must say that it seems pretty hard to be a modern woman in the kitchen. And an old-fashioned cook in the apartment—

Combining, in the unforgettable Munsie phrase, the best features of both!

GYPSY

My love is a trail of gypsy fires
One comes on by surprise—
And the yellow flames are old desires
Reminded in your eyes.

But gypsy caravans must go,
With the first touch of day,
And only the blackened earth will show
That I have passed your way.

Why Girls Want to Be Reporters
(From "Grey Dawn—Red Night," by James Canfield Horton.)

"Remember you have got the finest job in the world. You'll go about seeing all the world turning around, and you'll see it from the best seats, the inside places, and you'll be paid for doing it while other poor devils pay for the privilege. You'll stand nearer the King and Queen than anybody except the State Ministers, and you'll have the ring seats at the prize-fight. What other people do for pleasure you'll do as your job."

"Most of humanity have only one or two high lights in their lives, one or two outstanding incidents; a road accident, a police court case, a wedding, a fire, a theatre first-night. Your life will be all high lights. And not only will you be there, but you will have the inestimable privilege of telling all the world about it. And when you sleep you will dream of all the scandals and stories and inside information that all good journalists know and can never tell."

What other people do for pleasure—such as attending the most sordid murder trials—you'll do as your job. You'll go to all the conferences and meetings and conventions and you'll see them from the front seats, where you can't miss hearing every word of the dulllest speeches, and you'll be paid for doing it, and you jolly well ought to be! You'll stand nearer the presidents of the women's clubs than anybody except their recording secretaries, and you'll have the ring seats at those exclusive fights, which are otherwise known as meetings of the Board of Education.

And an old-fashioned cook in the apartment—Combining, in the unforgettable Munsie phrase, the best features of both!

Oh, well, probably the advice is perfectly sound. But we must say that it seems pretty hard to be a modern woman in the kitchen. And an old-fashioned cook in the apartment—Combining, in the unforgettable Munsie phrase, the best features of both!

Children Need Fathers, Too

ALITTLE one came crying to her mother, "That man who sits on the porch on Sundays spanked me." "That man" was her father! Although this may sound like a joke, in many families it is stark reality. And even where contact between fathers and children are more frequent, aren't there innumerable fathers who feel that they have fulfilled all obligations when they have supplied a livelihood for their families? But have they? Is there not something they can offer much more precious than money? Can they not also give of themselves? Can they not be a vital influence in their children's lives, instead of being mere figureheads?

In many homes, busy mothers might have to do much planning and sacrificing in order to find time for a real comradeship with their children. But I feel confident these fathers would be amply repaid for any sacrifice, not only by present satisfaction, but by delightful friendships with their youngsters, that would carry through the years.

Better far to think of a father as merely a bread winner, however, than to think of him as a "super policeman." "I'll tell father if you do that," is a constant threat in many households. And when father comes home from his work, very weary, he often has to listen to a long recital of the children's doings and meet out praise or censure. Perhaps mother has "promised" her young one that "father will spank her when he comes home." In this case father will have to fill the role of "executioner" as well. This is most unfair to father! And mother loses out, also. What child can respect an adult who is too weak to handle her own problems, who must turn to some one else to adjust them for her?

Fathers, however, can be a great help to mothers in the discipline of their children. Being away from the young ones more than mothers, they consequently have a greater perspective and are able to evaluate happenings more impersonally. Therefore, their advice in regard to the children's faults and foibles, is often most helpful. All such consultations, however, should be held in private. It is most unwise to argue about the young ones' misdeeds in their presence.

Most fathers love their little ones devotedly and are willing to give their lives for them. This, however, they are rarely called upon to do. But as soon as fathers realize that their children need companionship, understanding and sympathy from their fathers as well as their mothers, I feel confident they will make heroic efforts to meet this obligation.

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Paassen

PARIS, February.
Commissariat
Next!

It's raining war books these days. After Arnold Zweig's masterpiece and Remarque's "All Quiet on the Western Front" we have had Glaeser and Renn in Germany, Duhamel and Dorgelès in France, Graves in England, Hemingway and Pottle in America, to name but a few of the most impressive chroniclers of their own war experiences. No doubt the end of the stream of books on the subject of the war is not in sight yet.

As long as the present generation endures, there will be found men to write of the event in their lives that overshadows all others by the intensity of experience. For in spite of protests here and there, the war remains the thing that cut the lives of millions of men in half. They know only a "before" and an "after." They were not the same when they emerged from it; their whole outlook had changed. It had diverted them into unknown channels by its blasting of illusions and destruction of values theretofore considered vital and ultimate. We begin to know from the published series what was the life of the average infantry soldier and stretcher bearer and engineer in war. From what certain generals have written it is possible to form an idea also how the "brass hats" fared up at headquarters. We have had a glimpse of a medical man's reaction in Duhamel's intensely earnest recital. But the experiences of one lot remain shrouded in the dark. Not that we imagine it to be ever thus. Knowing something of the monumental nerve of the commissariat boys or the Army Service Corps or Quartermaster outfits, or whatever euphonious official name you may apply to the same gang of brigands, there is likely to be one of them one of these days to come and make a claim upon immortality. If he does, let him at least be truthful, even if it hurts. Let him explain why we had to walk around with the seats out of our breeches and why our tunics had sleeves that could only fit a chimpanzee, while they themselves were nifty Beau Brummels. Let them also explain, if they can, that bean business and the orange marmalade and the soggy bread, and above all let them furnish some clue as to why they, all of them, were loaded down with medals.

Myth of Wickedness
Since the war many a French publicist has protested against the traditional legend of Paris, and has wanted to spread another one—a truer one. They want the world to know that only a small proportion of Parisians ever "whoop it up" in night-joints or commit suicide over gambling debts or shoot others through jealousy. Most citizens of Paris, it has been revealed, are clock-punchers who perform have to have steady habits and be in bed at 10 o'clock. But what would be the point of spreading the "truth" about Paris? a writer asks. It is true, and all but the very uninformed know it or could guess it, that the vast majority of Parisians are docile, well-behaved citizens, with that salutary fear of policemen and of their employers which makes 99 per cent. of mankind respectable and timid. What of it? If that is all there is to see in Paris, then why travel to it from Chicago or Bangkok or Glasgow or Helsingfors? All that can be seen at home. So the legend of a very wicked Paris goes on and on.

Why Was Gaby Deslys?
The mystery that has suddenly arisen around the identity of the late Gaby Deslys is becoming more and more involved. It is seven or eight years since the death of the fair-haired dancer. Out of the recent claim of a Hungarian family, Navratil—doubtless encouraged by the considerable fortune left by Gaby—that the latter was in reality her daughter Hedwig, and not as everybody believed, a Marcellaise named Claire, have arisen various curious developments and allegations. First of all, presumably to the surprise of the Navratil parents, it is found that another ex-dancer closely resembling Gaby Deslys has for years past been living at Biarritz. She, however, appears to have proved her right to be the real Hedwig Navratil. But just when, in consequence of this discovery, the claim of the Hungarian family was regarded as without foundation, researches have shown that for six years before her death the name of Gaby Deslys in the principal Paris directory was followed by that of Hedwig Navratil, thereby indicating that this latter was in fact her real name. Among the suggestions put forward figures, with or without foundation, that of a "counter espionage." The real Hedwig has now introduced a further complication by alleging that when, some years before Gaby's death, she was staying at a Paris hotel where the latter was dancing she lost many of her personal papers. It is all very mysterious.

Stories of Business Success That Will Help Other Women to Make Money

By Helen M. Woods

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

THIS series of articles is written by a woman who knows what it is to succeed in business and how to help others to succeed. To give that kind of help by telling women how other women have succeeded is only part of the scope of this series.

To women who seriously desire to project themselves into business as it is, Miss Woods will give her personal advice. To do so she wants to know all she can about the woman who seeks advice—her social surroundings, her financial standing, her business experience and something of her tastes and inclinations. With this information in hand, she will try to help the ambitious woman to solve her business problem.

Miss Woods is credited with having helped more than a thousand women to success in business. She has had a wide and varied experience. She may be able to help you.

The Figure Clinic
"I've simply got to take off at least ten pounds" had become such a universal cry that Fay Fowler decided she would capitalize the will of the women of the Nation into real money. Personally, she had been tremendously benefited through a course of treatments she had undergone when she too, had taken off twice ten pounds and at least ten years from her looks. She spoke from the intimate standpoint of the woman who knew.

In her college days she had spent a year in an Eastern school studying physical education. This gave her an intelligent working background. She took stock of the amount of money she had to put into a business—not very much—but her enthusiasm was not limited by a small bank account.

She selected some space opposite the leading hotel. The rent, however, was higher than she could afford with her available working capital. So she advertised for a hairdresser and manicurist and a specialist in facial treatments to share the space. She had no difficulty in securing two desirable sub-tenants and began to put her shop in order.

She was able to get the exclusive right in her city for a well-known reducing machine. Next she installed an electric bath cabinet and blanket; then a large closet was ceiling and a big shower bath built in. She hired a skilled attendant—one who had formerly her own bath establishment—and who was still able to influence a following.

Fortunately the expense of installation and the rather large plumbing bill did not have to be paid for in cash, but could be met in monthly payments, so Fay still had enough money for an advertising campaign.

First, she had her windows facing the hotel and principal street lettered in large gold letters, "FIGURE CLINIC FOR WOMEN." She talked before women's clubs and teachers at their monthly meetings. All of this time she was carrying a neat little card of announcement in the newspaper. Next she bought ten minutes each day for a month in a woman's hour over the radio, stating that she would give a trial treatment free to those calling at the clinic. Gradually she began to get appointments and was able to sell some course cards calling for twenty-five treatments for a reasonable amount. She worked out diets, advised individually on home exercises to supplement her work in the clinic. She rented a motion picture machine with a strip of film showing certain health exercises that aided in health building and ran these off, slow motion, at her monthly talks to her clients and their friends. She left no stone unturned that might cover something of value in building up the confidence of her patrons. They, in turn, brought everything in their line of the proverbial snowball, the volume grew. Once a month she engaged a recognized health authority to give a free talk to groups of women in her office.

And as Fay said the other day: "Lady Luck was certainly kind to me, for here comes high waist lines in all of the smart new clothes, and the best of us can't crowd 200 pounds of avoirdupois into a high waist line and view the effect with enthusiasm."

A huge Christmas card is framed conspicuously in her office. It is from a well-known actress who played in stock during the past summer in Fay's home city and who had benefited tremendously from her work in the figure clinic. It bore the few lines: "Day by day, through the work of Fay, I'm rolling the pounds away."

MADRID, Feb. 10.—Miss Spain, running for Queen of the Universe on the non-cosmetic ticket, to-night denied she had knock knees. "It is a dastardly canard circulated by the opposition," she said. "My knees are as straight as the Republican Party. What they hear knocking are my castanets. I will win by a plurality of 60,000,000."

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 12.—Addressing a rally of 11,000 citizens in the armory to-night, Miss Sweden, the blond candidate, declared that if her opponent, Miss Bulgaria, was elected Queen of the Universe she would turn over the Northern Lights and the Aurora Borealis to the Power Trust. Miss Sweden pledged that if she was elected to the Universe Queen's throne she would preserve the Northern Lights and the Aurora Borealis for the people, as well as all rainbows and hail storms.

ATHENS, Feb. 13.—In a ringing speech at the Acropolis A. A. this evening, Miss Greece, a leading candidate for Queen of the Universe, denied her hair was falling out or that her one-piece bathing suit was padded. "I will be triumphantly elected to the throne," she declared, "without the aid of lipsticks, rouge or mascara on my eyelids, which is more than my opponents can say." Miss Greece denied she ever took a course in sex appeal.

PARIS, Feb. 20.—Miss France to-night denied she was a wet candidate and offered to show she had water on her knees to prove it. "I'm elected Queen of the Universe," she said in a formal statement, "I will endeavor to develop more skyrocket traffic to the moon and put the entire solar system on a sound financial basis. I will also arrange to have Halley's Comet come around every three years."

PUTTING BEAUTY QUEENS IN POLITICS

THEY will elect the Queen of the Universe at Rio de Janeiro this year, and let's hope they make it a real campaign. Last year, when the electorate chose Miss Universe, Heflin didn't see a solitary plot in the project, the General Motors Board of Directors failed to split over who should be Miss Detroit, and Mrs. Willebrandt didn't make a single stump speech in a beauty parlor. The result was Miss Universe of 1929 was elected with hardly a tumble from the rostrum sections.

This year we hope the citizens will take more interest in the election and that the candidates will put on a campaign for Queen of the Universe hang-up campaign. We should like to have some election excitement like olden times.

NAVAL SESSION DELAYED FOR WEEK

ment to guarantee peace in continental Europe but nevertheless was willing to accept a self limitation of the right to arm, Grand said.

The memorandum warned that the conference will fail of its purpose if it does not lead to an agreement determining the ratios of strength of navies and lowering the level of naval armament.

Senator Robinson's declaration, though not made in the form of a memorandum, could be construed as an equal attack on the French position. Addressing the Association of American correspondents at a luncheon, he took a direct filing at the French delegates' suggestion that their naval program could be cut down only if all five powers signed a definite security agreement.

No Entanglements

"My understanding," he said, "is that the people of the United States quite generally adhere to the traditional policy of our government to avoid, if possible, involvement in European politics. They would repudiate emphatically any treaty expressly or impliedly obligating our government to employ the army or the navy for the enforcement of obligations assumed by other nations."

"It is for this reason that they do not encourage their delegates to this conference to join in guarantees of security respecting areas remote from territory or possessions of the United States."

Referring to submarine warfare, Robinson said: "Our people have comprehended the inhuman character of submarine attack against merchant ships without regard to the safety of crews and passengers, and quite generally condemn bombardments from the air directed against unfortified cities and non-combatants."

His public reference to air attacks on cities was the first made at the conference.

MORTEMOTH KILLS MOTHS

The gas from Mortemoth crystals not only protects your furniture for a long time, but contact with it kills all moths, their eggs and their dangerous larvae in furniture which is already infested.

The proper method of using Mortemoth crystals is to tie them in small sacks, and to place these sacks down in the channel of the piece, as deeply as possible, behind the cushions, so that, upon expansion, the gas will spread and fill the spring units in the back and in the bottom of the piece.

When the sacks are empty, fill them again.

State Leading In Field Work For Insurance

The Arthur J. Hill California agency of the State Life Insurance Co. of Indiana led all the State Life's agencies again in January, which made the eighth month out of the 13 just passed that California has captured United States leadership, reports George P. Upham, State Life district manager at Richmond with offices at 818 Macdonald avenue.

The Hill California agency also furnished the leader of the State Life's field force for individual production, in Harold J. Werner, who has just entered upon his second year in life insurance work and who was formerly in the manufacturing business.

Over $1,500,000 of new State Life business was written in California during January, District Manager Upham reports.

Arthur J. Hill, who is making an outstanding success in the management of the California agency of the State Life of Indiana, was formerly in the newspaper and advertising business. He has achieved national reputation as an agency organizer and manager. The life insurance business, he predicts, will have a record breaking year in 1930, due to the important position that it now holds in the investment and financial world.

Jos. F. Boedeker, R. 14, Baden Sta., St. Louis, Mo.

Says, "I will tell or write about my complete relief with Lithiate Buchu (Keller Formula). How I was relieved of getting up nights and the terrible burning, noticed a change in 3 days. It acts on bladder as epson salts do on bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores, Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio or, locally at La Moine Drug Co."

FRANCE WILL NAME NEW PREMIER

PARIS, Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—President Gaston Doumergue will announce tomorrow morning the name of the man he has selected to form a new French cabinet. He made his decision tonight but kept it secret.

It is likely to be either Deputy Camille Chautemps, 45-year-old president of the radical socialist group, or Senator Maurice Sarraut, former president of the same party. Whether either can form a government with a workable majority of 260 votes in the Chamber of Deputies is problematical.

Andre Tardieu, overthrown as premier by left groups led by Chautemps Monday night, is willing to gamble that neither can succeed for long. He resisted today a suggestion that he accept the task of forming a new cabinet.

His idea was: "Why take another chance of being defeated on a minor issue while the London conference is on? Let the radicals try their hand, and fail, then the Premier again, and probably the radicals will stay quiet."

In any event there is little likelihood of France receding far from the naval demands Tardieu made at London. No matter what the makeup of the new cabinet, it will have a big navy man as minister of marine.

Chautemps is wise in the ways of politics, despite his comparative youth. He is a lawyer, comes of a political family, has been five times cabinet minister.

The choice, as far as he is concerned, was nearly taken out of his hands by fate today when he narrowly escaped death in a motor collision. He was badly shaken.

WOMAN FOUND SANE, HANGS FRIDAY

day, was returned by the jury despite the fact the bulk of testimony presented during the hearing was in substantiation of the defense claim that she was insane.

Both present and former prison physicians added their statements in corroboration of Warden Lorenzo Wright who told the jury at opening of the hearing Tuesday that he believed Eva Dugan was suffering extreme mental illness.

Mentally Lacking

Dr. Win Wyllie, psychiatrist, presented medical data further substantiating the warden's testimony.

Scott White, former prison superintendent, said he felt certain she had been mentally lacking since she first came under his observation.

Convicts of the prison were used by the defense to testify as to the woman's character in an effort to show by her actions since imprisonment that she was unbalanced.

Denies Killing

It was the testimony late today of Dr. George F. Huffman, superintendent of Placer county hospital, that brought closer to the condemned slayer the spectre of the hangman's noose. He declared the woman intelligent enough to realize her position and refused defense testimony to the effect that she had the mind of a child.

Mrs. Dugan was convicted in February 1928 of slaying Mathis, whom she served as housekeeper. She denied the killing from the start.

Modern Medicine turns away from "DOSING"

Back in the old "horse and buggy" days, it was the custom to give large doses of internal medicines for almost every human ailment. Then a North Carolina pharmacist originated Vicks VapoRub, the better method of treating colds externally.

Mothers appreciate Vicks, because it checks children's colds without the risk of upsetting delicate little stomachs.

Adults, too, have found Vicks just as good for their own colds. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Richmond rallied in the final quarter, with the result that their score was 18 points with but three minutes to play. Meyers then sank a foul shot for Richmond which was soon followed by a fine shot by Roveda, local forward. Kenney then brought Richmond's score to 23 by a foul shot in the last minute of play.

BYRD PARTY STARTS HOME

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—The New York Times, The Sun, Post Dispatch and newspapers affiliated with them in publishing reports from Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition announced tonight that Admiral Byrd and members of his expedition, after spending more than a year on the ice barrier of Ross Sea, broke camp and sailed homeward from the Bay of Whales on board the bark, City of New York at 9:30 a. m. today. Antarctic time, or approximately 4:30 p. m. eastern standard time.

They are bringing back essential papers and gear, but their airplanes and much other material it has been found necessary to leave behind.

Rear Admiral Byrd, at 41, has brought to an apparent climax a brief career of adventure and exploration which hardly a decade ago would have seemed impossible. His first great feat was a 5000 mile flight in 1925 over the Arctic with Floyd Bennett, pilot, and other assistants.

On May 9, 1926, with Bennett as co-pilot, Byrd flew from Spitsbergen over the north pole and back, 1360 miles in 15½ hours.

Ten days later Byrd announced that he would devote the next ten years to exploration—and that he would fly over the south pole.

145 ALL STARS WIN OVER MARTINEZ

One of the fastest lightweight cage games played in the local post-season league was won by the Richmond 145 pound All-Stars by a score of 38 to 34 against the Martinez lightweights last night at the Richmond high school gymnasium.

Both squads maintained an extra fast pace through all four cantos, and the contest ended just as fast as it began. Things were even during the first half, which ended with the locals in the lead of a 22 to 20 score.

Both aggregations bombarded their opponents' basket severely during the third period, with the result that the scoreboard read 31 to 31 in favor of Richmond at the end of the third quarter. A fast offensive on the part of the Martinez boys in the last quarter failed to raise their score to a par with that of the Richmond athletes.

The Garfinkle All-Stars and 145 pounders will travel to San Mateo tonight to meet the San Mateo All-Stars there.

The final card of the post-season schedule will be played next Thursday at the Richmond Union high school. The Garfinkle All-Stars will clash at that time with either the Hutton brothers or the Richmond Y. M. C. A. girls' game will also be played between the Richmond Y. L. I. and the Petaluma Spartans.

The Richmond lineup last night included: Dave Flynn (10), Ray Mellin (6), forwards; Paoli (6), center; George Cornell (6), Maloney (10), guards.

The Martinez athletes were: Johnson (8), Callum, forwards; Huffman (8), center; Swift (6), Woolley (2), guards; substitutes, Bell (9), forward; Hansen (1), guard.

Roosevelt 115 Pounders Win In Cage Game

Both the varsity and 115 pound quintets of Roosevelt junior high school registered decisive victories over the Longfellow junior high schools yesterday afternoon. The Roosevelt varsity won their contest by a score of 18 to 8, while the 115 pound Teddies were victorious by an 18 to 3 score.

The Roosevelt varsity and B aggregations showed a surprising brand of passwork in their battles against the fast Longfellow athletes yesterday afternoon. The Longfellow varsity showed plenty of strong opposition to the victorious Roosevelt boys, but the lightweights Teddies found no trouble in dispelling the hopes of the 115 pound cagers of Longfellow.

Hunt Ouster Paper Filed With Board

PALO ALTO, Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—Petitions that have been circulated on the campus here asking removal of D. P. "Husky" Hunt, as coach of Stanford's varsity basketball team, were submitted to Richard Barrett, chairman of the board of athletic control tonight. They had 854 signatures.

The lineups:
C GAME
Roosevelt—McKune, Hosmer, Pratt, Toyota, Strik, forwards; Kramer, Elliott, centers; Mackey, Raiso, Viedo, guards.
Longfellow—Apperson, Kubie, Gasparians, forwards; Ausahl, center; Heber, Anderson, Kruanos, guards.

Injuries Hit Giant Players

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—The Giants training campaign now has reached the stage where it has a casualty list. Three members of the squad were unable to take part in the workout today. Ralph Judd is down with an infected heel and is being treated by a local doctor for possible blood poisoning, while Frank McCullough, an infielder, is nursing a split finger. Leroy Parmalee, expensive rookie pitcher from Toledo, wrenched his ankle.

Shires To Start Spring Training

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—Only three players due for the White Sox camp have not yet reported to manager Donnie Bush. They are catchers Riddle and Crouse, Pitcher Dutch Henry wired that he will be here tonight. "All-Talkie" Art Shires is expected Sunday. Shires still seeks $25,000, but White Sox officials here with the club say there is no chance of his getting that much money.

Babe Ruth Only Yankee Holdout

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—Only two members of the New York Yankees, Babe Ruth and Tony Lazzeri, have not signed their 1930 contracts, secretary Ed Barrow announced today. Lazzeri is not a Babe Ruth's salary will be discussed, Barrow said, but has acceded at that time.

Star Silent On Condition Of Finances

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—Marjorie Rambeau refused to say tonight whether she is "broke" financially, as her lawyer claimed in a New York court today, but said that she understood it was a condition quite prevalent among our best people since the stock market collapse.

Miss Rambeau voiced a 'ho hum' when told that the alienation of affections suit brought against her by Mrs. Mabel Manton would have to be tried a third time because a jury disagreed.

It was the second trial of the suit, the former having ended in a reconciliation between Manton and his wife while the jury was deliberating. A third trial will probably take place in a few weeks.

Ivy Olson To Coach Dodgers

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—Ivy Olson, Brooklyn shortstop from 1913 to 1924, will return to the Dodgers this season as coach. Olson was the star and sparkplug of Brooklyn's 1920 pennant winning team, but never was popular with the fans. He was reputed to wear cotton in his ears to deafen the hisses of the grand stand "jockeys," who delighted in razzing him.

Mahan Kayoes Arizona Rivers

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—A right to the jaw landed by Fred "Dummy" Mahan, of Tombstone, Ariz., toppled "Arizona" Joe Rivers, Phoenix welterweight, for the count in the third round of a scheduled ten round bout here tonight. Mahan held the edge from the start.

Dave Shade Beats Burns

OAKLAND, Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—Dave Shade, New York middleweight, decided "Young" Johnny Burns of Oakland in a ten round bout here tonight.

Wife Killed, Mate Wounded In Gun Duel

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(U.P.)—Violent quarrels between a young husband and his wife led, here today, to a fatal duel on the street between them while their two small babies looked on.

The wife was killed and the husband was wounded critically. The babies, one and two years old, were crying lustily in their carriage when police arrived.

The woman, Mrs. Mary Kosentry crumpled lifeless at the wheels of the carriage with two bullets in her body. Her husband, Peter, fell a few feet away with a bullet in his chest. A revolver was found in the hand of the wife's body. Another gun was at the side of Kosentry.

Police said the evidence indicated that they had fought a duel on the deserted street with their terror-stricken infants as spectators. Apparently Mrs. Kosentry shot first, but missed her mark. Kosentry then returned the fire, killed his wife with two bullets, and attempted to commit suicide when he saw what he had done, police concluded.

Neighbors said they had quarreled, that Mrs. Kosentry hurried from their home with the babies and that her husband followed despite her angry remonstrances.

An Investment that does not fluctuate in value— Life Insurance

OWNERS of life insurance have had occasion recently to compare the stability of this form of investment with that of even the highest grade securities.

A chart of the market price averages of leading stocks for twenty years shows an irregular line that rises and dips, sometimes vertically, with "peaks and valleys".

There are no "depressions" in the investment values of life insurance policies. They do not fluctuate with business cycles. From year to year, the 44 million Metropolitan Life Insurance policies show a steady increase in values to policy-holders.

The man who regularly invests part of his earnings in life insurance can go to sleep each night with the knowledge that he is building an estate of the greatest security and with a sure investment return for every dollar paid in.

Life insurance is an investment whose value constantly increases the longer it is kept in force.

is a means of securing an income for a man's family or of providing against the decrease of his own earning power. Too few investors consider the fluctuating value of many popular investments, or realize that their holdings may be at a low peak just when they are most needed. But you can invest.

IN SAFETY

In life insurance. A policy in a sound company at once provides an estate and is an investment which is sure to increase steadily in value.

You will be interested in the advertisement of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company appearing in this paper. It offers an interesting comparison between life insurance and other forms of investment and gives much information about the Metropolitan. The local office of the company will be glad to advise you.

The GREEN GODDESS
by LOUISE JORDAN MILN
Copyright, 1929, by Frederick A. Stokes Company
"The Green Goddess," starring George Arliss, is a Warner Bros. Vitaphone picture of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Lucilla Crespin is glad when her husband's regiment is moved from Samarra to Dehra Dun where she can meet civilians. She and Dr. Basil Traherne, scientist and amateur aviator, find much in common and her husband, the Major, leaves them much together. He is drinking more and more and running after women. Lucilla often goes flying with Dr. Traherne. Colonel Agnew overlooks his drinking until Crespin at mess disgraces the regiment by falling senseless, dead drunk, at the toast to the King. Traherne pleads with Colonel Agnew to give Crespin another chance.

"As damned quick as you like," the doctor assented, following him. "I can't give you so much as five minutes," he said, as he seated himself at his writing-table. "I'll give you exactly two minutes. Go ahead!"
"It's about Crespin," Traherne said at once.
"There is nothing to be said about Major Crespin. You might have spared your legs, and my time."
"I've come to ask you to give him one more chance, sir," Traherne persisted. "I speak as his physician."
"Speak as his grandmother, for all I care—but speak somewhere else. I have definitely decided it, Colonel," he said simply. "not half so much for her as for him."
Agnew looked at his watch and swore.
"You've made me miss the mail. You've tricked me into it! I'll wire. Do as well."
"I did not try to make you miss the mail," Dr. Traherne said, looking full in the other's angry eyes. "I beg your pardon," Colonel Agnew said.
"I beg your pardon," Colonel Agnew said.

CHAPTER IV
COLONEL AGNEW got out of his chair heavily.
"Traherne," he said, "don't you think that I haven't tried to help Crespin. I have again and again. I've tried all I knew. We all have. It breaks my heart to have one of my boys go wrong. When Tony Crespin came out to us, he was only a boy. I fathered him, and by God, I mothered him too. I never had a likelier subaltern—until Tony. Colonel Agnew broke off abruptly and sat drumming wretchedly on the table.
"He did well in the War, I've heard," Traherne remarked.
"He did damned well in the war," Agnew said sharply. "And the War pretty well broke his heart. It did mine! We stuck here, sucking sugar-cane and ghee, with the greatest war in history going on over there—damn it—but I don't want to talk about it."

"There wasn't a man in the regiment that didn't love her."

what to do about Major Crespin, and I intend to catch the post."
"You promised me two minutes," Traherne reminded him.
"The time I gave them to you," the soldier snapped. "But I will not hear one word about Crespin."
"He can't help it, sir; it is disease."
"All the more reason to boot him out of the service. A soldier can help doing any damned thing that is unsoldierly. If he can't—he's no soldier."
"He can't help it—alone. I want you to let me help him to help it. I want you to give him a chance, and to give me a chance. There is a great deal that is fine in Tony Crespin."
"Don't you suppose I know that?" the other growled. "I'm his colonel!"
"And because you are, sir, you will help me to help him."
"I wish to God I could," Agnew growled. "But he's made that impossible this time. Don't say any more, Traherne. I know what you want. You want me to let him send in his papers. It can't be done. I have my duty to do. Major Crespin is going to be dismissed from the service."
"Let him send in his papers," Traherne ignored the words that had followed. "I want more than that, sir! I want you to let it pass."
The Colonel threw down his pen, and sank back in his chair, speechless. Traherne pressed on. "If he has to leave the Army, his case will be hopeless."
"The Service will be hopeless, if we officer it with drunkards," I think—and I'll be on the job for all I'm worth, if you'll let me have it my way, sir. Let him stay on with you. Give him leave—not too long, and I'll take him off after game or butterflies, or any old thing. I'll make him come." Agnew looked down, his eyelids blinked. "And bring him back with the stuff out of his blood. And when I have, I'll stick to him like a leech, and a brother and a doctor. I want to cure him. I believe that I may be able to do it—with your help, sir."
"Why are you so set on it, man? It wouldn't be a pleasant job. Stick to malaria, there's more in it."
"I'll stick to both," Traherne replied.
"But why in thunder do you want to do it? That's what I want to know. No, no—I don't," the old man had suddenly flushed like a girl. "—didn't mean that. None of my business!"
Traherne smiled again. "It isn't for Mrs. Crespin that I want to do

"Some one had to stay here, I suppose," Traherne said conciliatingly. "Who the hell said they didn't?" But it needn't have been the best regiment in the British Army, need it? Agnew blazed. "Yes, yes—Poor Crespin did his mother's meeting, curate-to-be bit, and he did it well. Wireless! Wireless!—doreme-fa-so! for a full-blooded man who aches and itches, and curses his guts out to be in at the rest—all his life!" He pushed the cigars towards Traherne, and took one himself. "May as well," he said sadly as he struck a match. "I need something, and it's too early for peps, and now I've let the mail slip, half an hour won't matter."
"They smoked in silence for a moment or two."
Agnew spoke first. "I did all I could for Crespin, as long as I could. Lord Traherne, I could forgive him all the rest—all his life!—but not how he's treated his wife!"
"He is very fond of her," Traherne interposed.
"Taken a rotten way of showing it," Agnew granted. "A sweetest woman never breathed. As nice a woman, and as good a woman too, as God ever made!"
"She is all that," Basil Traherne said softly.
"I wish you'd seen her when she first came to us. We lost our heads and our hearts to her. There wasn't a man in the regiment that didn't love her, and rejoice in her—and by Jove! there wasn't a woman that disliked her. Not one! I've been here some time! I never knew that to happen before. She was a perfectly happy, fearless, confident girl. Well—she's fearless now! But where are her happiness and her confidence? Whiskey-poisoned, and wanton-killed. I've seen men die in battle—pretty badly!—I've seen some of them—but the damndest thing I've ever seen was the hardening of Lucilla Crespin—to watch her eyes stiffen, at that low, sweet voice of hers, to feel her grow cold. It was bad enough when a look of terror began to creep into her eyes—it was a thousand times worse when it changed, and settled to a frozen, still despair. And her smile! Sweet and glad, every bit of it! Now, that woman's smile is the bitterest, saddest thing I know."
"Not when she smiles at her children!"
"Gad, no!" the Colonel admitted. "The young motherhood of her has not been spoiled the least, thank God!"
"You can't spoil such motherhood," the doctor asserted.

COUNTY 12TH IN ASSESSMENT VALUES

Contra Costa county, with a total assessed valuation of non-operative property of $93,913,155 has the twelfth highest assessed valuation for county purposes of all the counties in California, according to a study of tax rates and assessed valuations of California counties recently made public by California Taxpayers' association. To this assessed valuation an inside county tax rate of $2.03 and a tax rate of $2.46 on all property outside the incorporated areas is applied for 1929-30. In addition, the county has an assessed valuation of solvent credits of $619,432 and of stocks and bonds of $1,002,113. To these amounts the tax rates of one mill on solvent credits and two mills on stocks and bonds are applied.

Thirty-three counties showed increases in assessed valuation of non-operative property, not including stocks, bonds and solvent credits, 1929-1930 compared with 1928-1929. These increases ranged from $117 in Alpine county to $128,196,575 in Los Angeles county. Of these counties, ten showed increases in county tax rates for the same period. In Colusa and Tulare counties the assessed valuation increased while the tax rates remained the same. In 19 counties the assessed valuation increased while the tax rates decreased. In El Dorado county the assessed valuation increased, whereas the inside tax rate increased and the outside rate decreased. In Placer county the assessed valuation increased while the inside and outside tax rates decreased.

Twenty-five counties showed decreases in non-operative assessed valuation. These decreases ranged from $17,470 in Trinity county to $3,055,797 in Fresno county.

Of the counties showing decreases in assessed valuation for county purposes, Butte, Glenn, Humboldt, Lassen, San Mateo, Shasta, Sonoma, Sutter, Tuolumne, Yuba and Tehama counties showed decreases in county tax rates; Fresno, Madera, Marin, Mendocino, Nevada, Napa and Sacramento counties showed increases in county tax rates, and in Amador, Orange, Plumas and Trinity counties the tax rates remained the same.

In San Joaquin county the assessed valuation and the inside county tax rate decreased, while the outside rate remained the same. In Sierra county the assessed valuation decreased, while the inside tax rate remained the same. In Stanislaus county the assessed valuation and the outside county tax rate decreased, whereas the inside tax rate remained the same.

FRUIT GROUP ATTACKED IN SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—UP—A $200,000 damage suit charging that certain banks, a railroad, a fruit growers exchange and citrus leaders conspired to force him from the fruit packing business, was filed in superior court here late today by Llewellyn A. Banks, owner of the Medford, Ore., Daily News.

Banks, a prominent southern California orange grower, charged malicious, unwarranted and unlawful acts by the defendants. His complaint set forth that his credit had been closed in various institutions and with certain manufacturing companies in an attempt to force him to join the California Fruit Growers' Exchange or to retire from the field.

The defendants named were as follows:

California Fruit Growers Exchange; C. C. Teague, president of the exchange; Henry M. Robinson, president board of directors of the Security-First National bank of Los Angeles; Security First National bank; Federal Reserve bank; Security First National bank of Los Angeles; San Fernando branch, formerly known as the First National bank of Riverside; Bank of America of California; formerly Helman Commercial Trust & Savings bank; Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railway company, sometimes otherwise known as the Union Pacific System; Crown-Wilmette Paper company; California Pine Box Distributors; Schmidt Lithograph company; Riverside Orchards, Inc.; Charles F. Stern and several "John Does" and "John Doe" companies.

Banks charged that a conspiracy to eliminate him as a competitor of the Exchange is still in effect and that he has been damaged to the extent of one million dollars. He asked an additional one million dollars as punitive damages.

In the home of Walter McCansland 5429 Sacramento street, Richmond Annex yesterday afternoon. The house was badly damaged by the fire which started in a defective flue.

DOG SLED IN RACE FOR LIFE

parallel to the railroad, it was feared that his critically ill passenger might be dead before the tired dogs finally reached here.

Egatook was recalled by old settlers and explorers as a native who had aided many expeditions of scientists and geologists in their search for minerals in the far north.

He was caught in a violent blizzard in the Churchill region, Feb. 13. After hours in the frigid storm, he managed to crawl to his cabin. Both legs and one arm were frozen. Meagre medical care at the outpost was unavailing and gangrene set in.

Stewart volunteered to make the hazardous trip with him to the Pas. If the locomotive crew spots the sled, Egatook should be under the care of a competent physician here by tomorrow.

MAYER FILES GARBAGE SUIT

OAKLAND, Feb. 19.—E. P. Mayer, who holds a contract with the city to collect "wet" garbage is today seeking through court action to prevent alleged infringement by "dry" garbage scavengers.

Mayer, in a suit on file in Superior Court is asking that they be enjoined from the alleged practice of picking up wet garbage along with the dry and hauling the wet away to feed their hogs.

He stated that often such removal is made improperly, thus making his $20,000 bond posted to insure his responsibility for proper removal of wet garbage, subject to forfeiture. Mayer does not seek any monetary damages, although he declared that the practice of the defendants had caused him "great and irreparable damage."

Oresta Santucci, the Oakland Scavenger company and several "doers" were named as defendants in the suit.
